

COURSE DESCRIPTION (2019/2020)

SOCY1000 INTRODUCTION TO SOCIOLOGY

This course is designed to study how society works, (e.g. culture, groups and societies), why it works that way (e.g. socialization, social interaction, conflict theory, functionalism), in what way we are all affected (e.g. gender, race, class, deviance), and in what way we can change society (e.g. social movements). By the end of the course, students should understand society better and their relation to it more clearly.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY1001 READING SOCIOLOGY

This course aims to inculcate students with the basic reading skills that are necessary for understanding sociological literature, and in this way to acquaint students with the distinctive approach of sociology as an academic discipline and a way of seeing. Foundational concepts such as culture and social interaction are introduced by way of intensively reading elementary and classic texts. By the time the students finish this course, they should be able to read and analyze sociological texts with a reasonable level of language proficiency and intellectual literacy.

Pre-requisite: Sociology majors only

SOCY1002 INTRODUCTION TO ANTHROPOLOGY

Anthropology is the study of the human species in all its aspects: biological, social and cultural; behavioral and psychological; spiritual and symbolic; historic, environmental and material. This course concentrates on the multiple dimensions of cultural anthropology, or what it means to be human, through an examination of different cultures, topics and case studies taken from around the world. Goals of the course include appreciation of the variety and range of human achievement, the understanding of change and progress, and the imagination of alternative possibilities for much of what we take for granted in everyday life.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY1003 SOCIAL RESEARCH METHODS

This course introduces to students some of the basic concepts and practices of social research as adopted and codified by social sciences in general and sociology in particular. Comprehensive treatment of major research methods, including survey, in-depth interview, ethnography, and comparative-historical method, will be offered. The logic of social research will also be discussed, with the purpose of clarifying fundamental issues such as the nature of causality and correlation, the criterion and procedure of scientific falsification, etc. Methodological problems in the broad sense, such as the distinction among positivist, interpretive and critical approaches to social reality, will be covered as well.

Pre-requisite: Sociology majors only

SOCY2000 SOCIOLOGICAL THEORY

This course introduces and familiarizes sociology students with the major theoretical paradigms as they have emerged and evolved in the classical foundation and contemporary development of the discipline. Accordingly the course is intended to be at once analytical and historical, examining the shifting contexts within which various concepts and approaches have been formulated. We will focus on four sociological traditions, namely, rational choice, class analysis, institutional analysis, and symbolic interactionism. The course will also highlight the relevance and applicability of these perspectives to real social life.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY2001 SOCIAL STATISTICS

The primary purpose of this course is to provide students with the basic skills and understanding to conduct data analysis in social research. It aims to equip students with the statistical techniques used most commonly by social scientists. In addition, students are also instructed on the relationship between social theory and empirical analysis. At the end of the course, students should be able to understand research reports in social science publications and in the mass media, and should also be able to evaluate the accuracy and adequacy of the conclusions reached.

Pre-requisite: SOCY1003 Social Research Methods

SOCY2002 POLITICAL SOCIOLOGY

This course examines major theoretical questions about power, politics, and the state from a sociological perspective. We will explore the dynamics of political institutions and processes, on the basis of which issues concerning state formation and nationalism, social movements, globalization, political culture and participation, and civil society etc. will be discussed.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY2003 SOCIAL STRATIFICATION AND INEQUALITY

This course overviews the major sociological approaches to the study of social stratification and inequality. We begin with an examination of the concepts of social stratification and social inequality, with an emphasis on the major dimensions of stratification including caste, class, gender, and ethnicity. The consequences of stratification on life chances and life style and on social mobility will be explored. The empirical relevance of these issues to the changing stratification system of Macao will also be addressed.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY2005 QUALITATIVE SOCIAL RESEARCH METHODS

This course is designed to introduce students to the principles and methods of qualitative research. It aims to guide students to appreciate the value of qualitative research as well as to get a practical grasp of a variety of qualitative research strategies and techniques. We will examine some of the main methods used by qualitative researchers in social sciences and in particular sociology such as participant observation, interviewing, documentary research, and content analysis etc. Our examination will consist of both readings and actual practice. The purpose is not only to understand the comparative strengths and weaknesses of each method but also to gain experience using them.

SOCY2006 SOCIOLOGY OF DEVIANCE

We will study how and why certain behaviors are considered dangerous enough to deserve negative sanctions, how deviant careers are socially constructed, and how deviants and conventional society cope with each other. In addition to theories, we will study criminal behavior, drug use, heterosexual and homosexual deviance, physical deviance such as body piercing and tattooing, religious deviance, and mental disorders, etc.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY2007 SOCIOLOGY OF GAMING

This course will cover topics related to gaming and society. We will examine briefly the history of the gaming industry in leading casino cities, and the social consequences generated by it. This course will focus on four tendencies in the development of the gaming industry: legalization, popularization, entertainment, and modernization. The development of Macao's casino industry and the challenges it faces will be emphasized.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY2008 ENVIRONMENT AND SOCIETY

This course addresses the complex and often problematic relationships and connections between humans and natural and built environments by examining how cultures and societies construct knowledge about nature and attribute value to it, how they use or abuse environments and resources, and how human activity, culture and social organization have always been deeply linked to the natural, material world. It also examines how factors such as gender, race, class, ethnicity, and cultural/historical experience influence the ways people perceive, understand, interact with, and are affected by the environments in which they live.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY2009 THEORY IN ANTHROPOLOGY

This course examines why theory matters and how and why anthropological theories have influenced and been influenced by empirical studies of human communities and on-going debates about culture. We will discover why theory in anthropology has often been contentious, controversial, and marked by many productive disagreements and varieties of approach. The goals are to foster critical understanding of the aims and scope of any theory by examining, in historical context, the ideas of some of the discipline's most influential thinkers and evaluating their continued relevance to contemporary research.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY2010 INTRODUCTION TO CRIMINOLOGY

The purpose of this course is to familiarize students with the major issues in the field of criminology, i.e., various approaches to criminology, concepts of crime and law, theories of crime causation, types of crime, and the criminal justice system. In other words, we are studying the what, why and how of crime and justice. The course is characterized by class discussions, presentations, mini-lectures, guest lectures, field trips, videos, and a major research project

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY2011 SOCIOLOGY OF ADDICTIVE BEHAVIOR

This course focuses particularly on the addictive behavior of substance abuse/dependence in the social context of Chinese and Western culture. An emphasis on societal issues associated with licit and illicit drug use, effects of drug addictive behavior, and the criminal justice system is framed with current, classic, and state-of-the art research studies. Though focusing primarily on the sociological aspect to examine substance abuse addiction, some information on the biopsychosocial aspect is discussed as well so to exhaust and contrast diverse views to some degree on addictive behavior. The historical perspective is surveyed, along with introducing students to various treatment approaches to addictions.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY2014 CHINESE SOCIETY

The course is structured not as an historical chronology but rather as a thematic discussion of some of the major issues in contemporary China. We will explore the basic institutional make-up of Chinese society, the structural changes brought forth in the reform era, and the impacts on the daily existence of the people therein. It is expected that after taking the course, students would not just know, but could also make sense of, what is going on in Chinese society today.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY2015 POLICING

This course aims to provide students with a criminological understanding of police and policing in a historical and comparative perspective. Upon completion of the course, students will be able to master key concepts and theories of policing; critically analyze various issues and controversies on contemporary policing; understand social structural factors in shaping police practice in a given country; locate a local police issue in a historical and global context; and understand future development of policing.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY3000 GENDER AND SOCIETY

This course studies how pervasive gender is in organizing our social life. We shall examine how gender organizes everything from our sense of personal identity to our daily face-to-face interactions, and how gender is embedded in institutions such as the family, labor market, religious institutions, and the state. The aim is to provide students with sociological ways of thinking about gender.

Pre-requisite: None

SOCY3001 SURVEY METHODS AND SAMPLING

This course aims to teach students how to design a questionnaire and implement surveys using simple random, systematic, stratified, clustered or multistage sampling designs. Students are also expected to learn how to estimate sample size, test hypothesis and adjust for non-response upon successfully completing this course.

SOCY3002 INTERNSHIP

This course is designed as a field practice course. Students will learn how to apply what they have learnt in class to a practical situation. They are expected to write reports and meet with the instructor regularly, in groups and/or in person, to share their experiences and discuss what they have learnt.

Pre-requisite: With instructor's approval

SOCY3004 RELIGION AND SOCIETY

This course examines the various approaches and studies pertaining to the complex interrelationships between religion and society. Some of the major themes it covers include: the classic secularization debate, sect and cult as the agents of religious and social change, the social and symbolic functions of ritual, the ambiguous power relationship between church and the state, the role of different religions in the making of modern civil society, as well as the resurgence of religions in the age of globalization. Examples from religions in Macao and other societies will be used in the illustration and discussion of relevant concepts and theories.
